- Spaced repetition: Flashcards help you space out your learning, which is essential for long-term retention. By reviewing flashcards at increasing intervals, you can reinforce your memory and prevent forgetting.
- Active recall: Flashcards require you to actively recall information from your memory, which is a more effective way to learn than simply reading or listening to lectures.
- Self-assessment: Flashcards allow you to assess your own understanding of a topic. If you can't answer a question correctly, you know that you need to review that material.
